Null votes out, proclamation next week

By Michael Lin Ulas and Kristine L. Alava

THE JOINT CONGRESSIONAL CANVASSING COMMISSION and the Commission on Elections (Comelec) said there will be a proclamation of the country's next president and vice president next week, shoring the door on vice presidential candidate Sen. Manuel Roa's bid to have more than 2.5 million "null" votes for vice president mutually conceded.

Enrile is correct.

Congress adjourned yesterday without Bangit getting the nod of the Commission on Appointments (CA). Thus, he is deemed bypassed and has to vacate his post and be replaced by his vice chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Rodrigo Biazon, according to Enrile.

Enrile, who chairs the CA, said that Ma

Arroyo can no longer appoint Bangit because of the ban on presidential appointees that will remain in effect until her term ends on June 30.

"(Bangit) has to step down as chief of staff," he told reporters, adding that Bangit's vice chief of staff on military

THE 'QUORUM' MAN: It was a Lukus Bangit stalwart, Campaign Rep. Pedro Romasdo, who raised the lack of a quorum and stuck to it, "as a matter of principle," he said. He also said Speaker Prospero Pineda begged him "on bended knees" to reconsider. A crash of drama there. He left, ensuring more push-pullers out of the gallery after the House adjourned without calling the 7-year-old freedom of information bill.

No quorum kills freedom of info bill

By Lella B. Salaverria

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES accomplished nothing on its last session day yesterday, but claims of deceit, threats of arrest and declarations of outrage flew fast and furious.

Declared seven short of a quorum, the House adjourned without mulling the freedom of information (FOI) bill—a landmark piece of legislation that would have lifted the shroud of secrecy over government transactions and data.

Rejection was to have been the last step before the nine-year-old bill is submitted to President Ma'nang Arroyo for her signature.

The proponents of the bill tried valiantly to avert it, even invoking a House rule that allows the arrest of lawmakers. Quorum Rep. Leticia Tanada and Ma'nang Rep. Prospero Pineda were surprised at the back of a quorum and said they were shocked that

The survey, conducted by the Asia-Pacific Center for Research Inc. (APCRI), was carried out amid debates over the proposal to extend the election firearms ban, which will end on June 9.

Dr. Antonio Ponsanilla, APCRI president, said the survey also showed that most residents of the National Capital Region (NCR) prefer that a policy be adopted to prohibit people from carrying guns outside their residences.

Majority of the respondents said they believed that the checkpoints that the police and

TERM-SHARING DEAL

Lakas fields Lagman for speaker

ALL FOR TWO: Lakas-Kampi members of the incoming House of Representatives pledge to support their candidate for Speaker, Edcel Lagman (not Benito Sison) (center) who agreed to split the room, if they win the speakership.

By Lela B. Salaverria and TJ Bugarin

TWO SENIOR MEMBERS OF THE ADMINISTRATION LAKAS-KAMPI-CMD have agreed to a term-sharing arrangement, should the party's candidate prevail in the election for House Speaker in the upcoming 15th Congress.

Edcel Lagman, who has been chosen as the Lakas-Kampi-CMD candidate for speaker, will lead the House for the first 18 months of the 15th Congress, after which, after 18 months, Lagman will step down and be replaced by Benito Sison, the party's candidate for the speakership.

The choice of Lagman was made at a party meeting recently after the party chair, President Manuel Amors, took himself out of the running. He says he will be joining the new Congress as the representative for the Pangasinan's second district.

No secret ballot

The party rejected the traditional secret balloting, and chose Lagman as its candidate by consensus after he agreed to the term-sharing arrangement with the other candidate, Sison.

The Lakas-Kampi-CMD is expected to go head-to-head in the speakership race with the Liberal Party, the party of presumptive president-elect Ben. Rodrigo Duterte III, which is fielding Quezon City Rep. Nelson Espina.

Lagman said that while the party speaker-candidate was identified, Lakas-Kampi would have a better chance of taking the post.

As the chosen candidate, he said he will use his personality to negotiate with other parties, like the Nacionalista Party, the Nacionalista People's Coalition, party-list groups and groups identified with former lines.

say Benito Sison, for a speaker candidate.

Good for the party

According to Lagman, the decision to have two Lakas-Kampi speakers sharing a three-year term would be good for the party. "This would prevent the party and avoid division within the ranks," he said.

Lagman said the coalition has to go for the speakership to it has a mandate to do so, having the most number of elected lawmakers.

"There are more elected Lakas members inside House. That's our obligation," he said. "That's why we are fighting for the speakership," he said.

Lagman said, however, losing a tough task of re-constituting its forces after losing key offices in Bohol.

He also said that he will use his personality to negotiate with other parties, like the Nacionalista Party, the Nacionalista People's Coalition, party-list groups and groups identified with former lines.

Party officials said the success of Lakas-Kampi-CMD's bid for the speakership would depend on how well it negotiates, and consolidates forces with other parties.

Of the 188 party members elected to seek terms in the 15th Congress, only 93 elected lawmakers will be in the party, 10 are independents, and the rest have belonged to opposition lawmakers, officials said.

Corona to convene JBC soon

By Denis Pineda-Ruiz

CHIEF JUSTICE DOMINGO CORONA SAYS he plans to convene the Judicial and the Council soon so that the new president, Gov. Roberto "Roberto" Aguilar II, can make his first appointment to the Supreme Court in the next few months.

Former chief justice Roberto Pardo's retirement last May 17 opened a vacancy in the 15-seat high court.

Upon Pardo's retirement, President Clinton Murguía Arreola, with broad and undisputed authority as the new chief justice, designates the public outcry against what was perceived as "undisputed appointments."

The Constitution says the JBC, a collegial body created by the chief justice, to initiate the selection process for appointees in the judiciary and to submit a shortlist of nominees to the president for approval.

Since the vacancy occurred on May 17, Aguilar has until Aug. 17 to appoint a new Supreme Court justice. The Constitution requires the president to fill in a vacancy in the high court within 90 days after the vacancy.

Aug. 17 deadline

Corona told reporters yesterday at the launch of the Instituto Judicial de la Poder Judicial in Merida City that he would convene the JBC soon after the Supreme Court resumed its weekly or bi-weekly (full court) sessions on June 15.

"We have to convene soon because the president has 90 days from vacancy or until August 17 to appoint," he said.

The Supreme Court, in its controversial 9-1 ruling last March 17, allowed his return to fill in a vacancy in the high court and the end of his term on June 30.

But the earliest time that the JBC may convene to start the selection process is on June 21 (June 14 was declared a holiday), leaving the JBC little or no time to meet and submit nominees to the president before the expiring deadline on June 30.

Three of the eight JBC members would be ex-officio members.

Techies start probe of loose PCOS machines

By Divinor O. Acosta

THE TECHNICAL WORKING GROUP formed by the poll organization convened yesterday to look into whether all present count optical vote (PCOS) machines listed in the house of a list of machines in Aguascalientes, whether the May 17 elections were tampered with.

The group was able to audit only six of the machines. It was expected to work through the weekend to complete its analysis.

Senate President Juan Ponce de León said that the work of the technical working group would not adversely affect or delay the convening of votes for the president and vice president.

"There is any threat in the claim of fraudsters using or falsification of documents, all will be taken up to the prosecutor," Ponce said yesterday.

The list also said he would ask the Commission on Electronic to review over the 60 PCOS machines which had been in the custody of the Senate.

At yesterday's examination of the machines, four of the six were found to be improperly loaded or loaded.

Presidential candidate Antonio Peña said the finding indicated "no proper handling" by election officials. "There is a preponderance of presumptions not being followed. That is a very bad sign that suggests of the presumptions are not being followed and for me...that presumption and concern did not do proper handling," he said, who observed the examination of the PCOS machines conducted at the Senate session hall.

"The more not people intervene, that there was that there was a kind of liberty, because they did some thing. There was badly working," he added.

Peña said it was too early to say the machines were tampered with because the group still had to look at the software which could only be done if the source code for it were used.

Peña and other information released, say reports on hand to estimate the commission of the PCOS machines requested the group to get a hold of the source code, which was being held to review at the Aguascalientes nightclubs.

But Commission on Electronic (Comisión de Electrónica) spokesperson Juan Jiménez said that the Commission on Electronic would have to make that decision when it met on Monday. Jiménez said he did not see any reason for the poll body was passing the request. Jiménez said that the Commission did not think the PCOS machines in Aguascalientes were tampered with.

Peña said that the Commission on Electronic, which was constituted to undertake the examination of the machines, was withdrawing the machines from the election in Aguascalientes and bringing them to his house awaiting their pickup from the Aguascalientes police.

"It just happened some people saw this and declared what really happened," he said.

From the point of view of the Commission, no cheating happened in Aguascalientes. The more than that a criminal, said from insurance took the machines from there's still no fault, he suggested," he said.

Jiménez said that once the status of the Commission and that the analysis of the 60 PCOS machines would help clear up things.

A Manifesto for Truth in the May 2010 Elections

Fellow Filipinos,

Today, we stand at a crucial crossroad that can remake us as a nation. It is in our hands to ensure this does not happen. I am calling for a manual recount of all the ballots cast in all precincts nationwide to settle the election controversy once-and-for-all.

Many of us had hoped that poll automation would begin a new era of clean, orderly, and honest electoral exercises.

Unfortunately, it is increasingly clear that is not what happened. Smartmatic, the group hired by Comelec to design and manage the voting system for the May 10 elections, failed to ensure clean and honest elections. Numerous reports coming from all over the country indicate that election irregularities and blatant fraud were so widespread that the voting system installed by Smartmatic needs to be investigated. Some of these complaints have already been aired before the Congressional Committee on Suffrage.

Independent IT experts have pointed to glaring weaknesses and failures in the automated system's technical and security apparatus. The Commission on Elections and Smartmatic should explain these deficiencies satisfactorily to the Filipino public.

As an engineer, I am trained to analyze vital points in any structured system and it is apparent to me that critical areas in the automated election process may have been compromised.

Pampering to these technological failures are complaints from both candidates and voters. Different individuals have testified, under oath, that there was a group, claiming links with some officials of the Commission on Elections and Smartmatic, that offered national and local positions to the highest bidder. These allegations cannot be ignored. There are enough reasons to believe that there was wholesale fraud in the May 10 elections.

If proven true, then there was no election at all. Manipulated machines took the place of the electorate. Witnesses (who have remained anonymous in fear for their lives) have come forward with video-recorded testimonies on how the cheating through manipulated machines were carried out.

Investigation should proceed and continue until we arrive at the truth. Fortunately, it is still possible to ascertain the genuine outcome of the elections. The PCOS machines contain the ballots cast by 50 million voters last May 10. A manual recount of all the ballots, provided these have not yet been tampered, would show for whom the people actually voted.

I am calling on all patriotic Filipinos to join me in this call for a manual recount of all the ballots to settle the election controversy.

A true and credible election is a people's decision and has a crucial impact on the fate of our nation and the political decisions our leaders have to make. Therefore, a credible election is a must at all cost.

My quest goes beyond any personal ambitions, party loyalties, and affiliations. It is about searching for the truth. We owe it to ourselves, the country, and to future generations that the true will of the Filipino

Lakers get physical

LA bullies its way past Boston in Game One

LOS ANGELES—THE LOS ANGELES LAKERS PROVED THEY were much more sophisticated than Boston earlier by beating the Celtics 143-89 in Thursday's opening game of the NBA finals series.

Kobe Bryant scored 31 points and Pau Gasol had 23 points and 14 rebounds to give the Lakers the 1-0 series advantage in the 12th NBA Finals series.

Boston's coach Doc Rivers said the team was "very physical" in the game, but the Lakers' physicality was "a little bit more."

The Lakers' physicality was "a little bit more" than the Celtics' physicality, which was "a little bit less."

Stay away from these creepy college characters

From the borrowers to the clingers and social climbers

By Peter Mark M. Salinas
Contributor

COLLEGE IS A WHOLE NEW world! Learning, with lessons, challenges, first times, fun moments and drama. It's filled with interesting individuals too, from scary and intimidating biggies to forgettable (even unattractive) extras.

It's where you first personally favorite people as well, like best friends, lovers, playmates, and The One.

And don't rule out the bad guys. They exist in this world, too.

You will come across at least one of the following shady characters, the frustrating thing is, while you want avoid them, you, in fact, can't. You'll have to deal with them somehow.

The borrowers

Borrowers—regardless of what they are trying to borrow—are annoying because they always pass them. They borrow you when you are in the zone, and ask for what it is you are using. Not only are they lazy and dependent, they also act as if it's your responsibility to lend whatever and whenever they like.

The worst kind are those who don't return... even when you ask for the stuff back!

The best way to deal with these people is... ignore! They'll eventually stop bothering you... they realize they can't borrow anything from you.

Insecure teachers who hate you

These teachers may be nice and kind to you but they do exist. These are the ones who, for some reason (maybe they were right or maybe they are wrong), just hate you with each passion that no matter what you do... are the reason, students like you exist.

They will continue to give you questionable low grades, and laugh at your witty jokes, and ignore you in the hallways.

Don't feel bad though, because it probably isn't your fault—nothing personal. They may have just perceived what you are or what you are not, and that's all that matters. You won't be back in school.

Superior-looking seniors

Some seniors are on the top of the food chain. They know stuff, breathe, experience and justice are just breathing about. They are superior in a way you, but that doesn't give them the right to step on you.

So while giving you tips on how to deal with

Bags to school

Tara Alberta, AB Management Economics, Ateneo de Manila University

I will never go to school without... "My planner and one of those pens. I can't live without my planner. I bring my life organizer and my day-to-day calendar and to do list on them. I am very organized personally but I am losing. Of course, I can't go to school without my ID."

Something I would like to... "Meeting new people, making new friends, and getting involved in school activities. I can't believe I'm saying this, but I'm looking forward to knowing my classes as well."

Paco Barrios, BS Business Administration, University of the Philippines

I will never go to school without... "My calculator, notebooks and pens."

I'm looking forward to... "Witnessing social networks and making new friends."

The best thing about being a college freshman... "Starting anew, the opportunity to make new friends on a clean page."

Take a peek inside these college freshmen's bags

FROM INCOMING FRESHMEN students from Manila's top universities, here's what's inside their bags and what they consider essential to carry forth into the hallowed halls of the academe. They also share their excitement, fears, and hopes, as they venture out from the cocoon of high school and into the rough and tumble of college life.

Raisa Tin, BS Psychology, De la Salle University

I will never go to school without... "My ID and my bag which carries all of my essentials."

I am looking forward to... "New beginnings, new friends, new stress, and new insights."

The best thing about being a college freshman... "Being able to explore new territories and go beyond my comfort zone."

Justin Zaldivar, BS Psychology, Centro Escolar University

I will never go to school without... "My pen, notebook, and ID."

I'm looking forward to... "More challenging academics, work that I believe will aid my knowledge of capacity and documentation."

Share a college-related anecdote... "I initially thought of college as a nightmare where professors are out to terrify their students. But I changed my view and now I'm looking at the next four years as an exciting journey, a roller coaster ride filled with ups and downs, but enjoyable nonetheless."

Athlete, math whiz, musician—Jiggy plays cool

But he comes across as boy-next-door type

By Lito Canlas-Juan

DOWN TO EARTH Jiggy Parel seems like your boy-next-door, perhaps he wants it that way.

In fact, he is more than that. He is an athlete, a math whiz, and a musician. And this incoming BS-IT student at UP Los Baños isn't stopping at being those... he has his goals, lots of them, and he is an engineer.

A former San Isidro Labrador high school student, he has an ultimate love for rock, particularly the band, "Cold and Country."

"Since I play the guitar, I like bands with good guitars, and this band has a 'heavy' sound. Do you describe yourself?"

"I'm an easy-going guy. You can talk to me about anything under the sun."

Something about yourself your friends do not know about?

I think they already know everything.

Your favorite song on your playlist?

"I love the songs 'Collide' by Snowglobe Recycling. It's a bit song I just just want to tell. The coolest thing you did for someone?"

I gave her a big bouquet of flowers. Last November I asked a friend to play something in the background. Maybe it might not be too good but it's not a concert performance at all.

The stupidest thing you've ever done?

Reading notes during the last test in front of the entire class. Luckily, I didn't get caught though.

The best gift you've ever received?

Parents. For as only child, I'm not.

2007 was a great year for you. What's your favorite memory from that year?

Really appreciate the company of my friends.

Do you have a memorable moment in your life?

When I was with the team in IFC to represent our school this summer. It was my first experience with stress and the team was complete.

If a genie gave you three wishes, what would you wish for?

To travel around the world, meet great people and have a great future!

What will you miss most about high school?

My friends, the things, my teachers and my classmates.

After graduation, are you looking forward to college?

Yes, but I don't really know what to expect.

Super Android phone

By Harvey S. Marasigan
Contributor

MELBOURNE, Australia—It's 10 in the morning at Tullahoma Airport; a Singapore Airlines plane has just landed. Among its passengers is a young professional who left Manila to attend a business meeting. Unlike his usual business trips, he has no BlackBerry or HTC with him this time; he said he is equipped with a powerful communication gadget, his Sony Ericsson Xperia X10, and he will rely on this sleek, lightweight, super Android phone.

He said as he disembarked, he noticed the phone in his pocket for a few times on his way to the bus stop. He said the phone's "Multi-touch" interface is so easy to use that he doesn't need to be a tech expert.

After a few seconds of use, the X10 caught a strong network signal from Singapore Airlines and connected to wireless Internet. The young professional immediately browsed his phone and opened his "Twitter" account, a unique feature available to select models of Sony Ericsson phones, and updated his Twitter and Facebook status to "I have just arrived in Melbourne."

This gives him this "fun-to-use" feeling that he can actually make use of the phone. He said he will use his phone in Manila to update his status on the world to be in his mobile commerce (e-commerce) in Los Angeles in his Facebook, saying "Don't forget to like Facebook since here" and "Like phone."

"Twitter" gathers all communications that anyone of his contacts has sent him and gives him a list of all the "likes" and "favorites" he has received.

A yuppie road-tests the Sony Ericsson Xperia in Australia download application he downloaded for free from the Android market. He called his "X10."

Web machine

As he played the PlayStation 3 game, he opened his Xperia X10 on his pocket, took a photo and shared it to his friends via Flickr. The X10 is not just a big screen, but has a huge screen, it's actually better for viewing photos than with the X10. It's a great camera.

Significantly, the camera has automatic, flash and a digital zoom. It also has a smart face recognition feature, which not only recognizes faces when using the camera, but also recognizes them in any picture stored on the phone. This means that if you name a person in the photo, the X10 can then recognize that person in other photos.

problem for a computer and that it might not have a 300 percent screen size, you'd be right for it. It's actually well worth the price.

So, despite the fact that he's the young professional, used a $1,000 to buy a Sony Ericsson Xperia X10, the phone is actually well worth the price. It's a great camera, it's actually better for viewing photos than with the X10. It's a great camera.

Significantly, the camera has automatic, flash and a digital zoom. It also has a smart face recognition feature, which not only recognizes faces when using the camera, but also recognizes them in any picture stored on the phone. # This is your fresh start

You're definitely ready for the vibrant life ahead. Here are tips to get you through.

1. Be open and be a social butterfly. Be a social butterfly with the things you say and do; you don't want to offend anyone. Be open to others. Since you will be studying in a diverse environment, embrace cultural and religious differences, as well as other people's individuality.

2. Don't drink. Now's the time to boot up your college career. In college, you'll be doing a lot of writing, even if you're a math major. Many are in 141 programs and do a lot of writing, even if you're a math major.

3. Simplify. Consider what you like; college is not a time to be a hoarder, not a time for throwing off and putting on. College is about knowledge, productivity, and intellectual growth. Don't let your past habits hold you back. College is about knowledge, productivity, and intellectual growth. Don't let your past habits hold you back. complex, complex. The room of windows are also.

4. Take up love. Don't come to the first day of class unprepared. If you're going to a party, consider your wardrobe and the number of people you'll be spending time with. Be a social butterfly with the things you say and do; you don't want to offend anyone. Be open to others. Since you will be studying in a diverse environment, embrace cultural and religious differences, as well as other people's individuality.

Study findings suggest that Vitamin B complex + minerals (Berocca®) may improve physical and mental performance

Research from a recent study conducted by researchers at the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) suggests that Vitamin B complex + minerals (Berocca®) may improve physical and mental performance in healthy individuals. The study, which was conducted by Professor Dr. David Swanson, Director of the Center for Human Performance and Nutrition Research, found that the combination of Vitamin B complex + minerals (Berocca®) significantly improved physical and mental performance in healthy individuals.

those whom you're and familiar with. Being alone is never an option. Finding some friends to study with will be more than just a comfort; it's the friends you will find in college will be the friends you will find in the rest of your life.

7. Get to know the people in school offices. They can help you in many ways, especially the office of student affairs.

Good job, freshman! Keep it up.

Gadget dress-up

By Tere Pang
Contributor

I DON'T LIKE DRESSING up dogs in human attire. Sure, occasionally my dog gets to don a raincoat or a sheep costume, but only for picture-taking; afterward, I take them off him. I just feel that dogs and outfits do not mix (and don't get me started on shoes for dogs).

I, however, have no qualms about dressing up my gadgets. I had never realized some it was common to have more than one laptop sleeve, and a friend asked me curiously how many I had at home. I began counting and stopped at 11. She was shocked, apart from the desire to change my laptop sleeve/bag the way I do (hello, I must admit that I am better on the quest to find the perfect gadget: cordless, cool, unique, lightweight, functional and, possibly, pink).

The same goes for iPhone cases. I have to have one for rugged use, one for pinkish, chick-reviver cases, several variations in shiny gold (step on now!), and more to go with my mood, when I mean my iPhone to go with mine. I have in place one device that I get from one laptop sleeve, and one from another (shiny gold step on now!).

One night when I cannot sleep and there's nothing good on TV, I realize that I'm the girl, get cases in my hands to sleep in. My last laptop sleeve acquisition was a dapper-style laptop case that looked like an animal envelope. I realized it was time, when, after processing my order, I realized that I was not at all.

There are three words any reader should know my in use. Out of stock. What next is simple: finding today to have a new laptop sleeve suddenly becomes a burning need to acquire.

I suddenly thought the water-soluble, the style, I even thought some Korean embroidery, trying to figure out how to order from a nearby Korean website. My shopping skills were put to the test, not to mention my Google search skills rapidly.

I finally placed the item down from a thing that was sold. She only had two left, and she accidentally wrote the shipping address in my house via our old e-mail (not local postal system). I panicked.

Was I going to finally have the laptop sleeve of my dream? I decided only to have the item tomorrow (how late is it?).

So my day, I ordered the item tomorrow, and I had it. I was happy to be happy. I figured it wouldn't hurt to have a backup, if it is available that someone will want to buy it from me, or someone else will be receiving an actual envelope (perhaps this Christmas).

Trending

Laptop cases are also stylish "back to" items when traveling. I don't distinguish between branded and non-branded, I once spotted in front of a mall, bought one, for an hour, it was like I was in Singapore. Buying through like iPhone cases hoping to find a gem (I did find a more pink one on sale).

Locally, the favorite laptop cases for gadget users are (Shiny Gold, Shiny Silver and Shiny Blue). I recently passed by Shiny Mac Center's computer in Greenbelt 1 and found them stocking brands I used to find only online, such as Pink Panda (design) iPhone case. They now have bags, sleek styles,

It has never occurred to me it's unusual to have several laptop sleeves and iPhone cases

FOOD-savers for iPhone users and artists who want to close on the iPad for those who really need a savior for their iPhones or for artists who want to use the iPad to a high-tech sketch pad.

Even early adopters are now included in the fun, as they're finally acceding to the fact that there are already a lot of iPads in Manila and have delivered a more shelf-to-shelf case (like most of us) and as well as (much-needed) KOREA products. I like how their marketing, due to strategic according to device, making choosing just one gadget case to take home really painful, as all of them are too close.

We're often looking up to our phones and bringing our laptops to others that we have done asked is just wanted. Power your investment while making them look good, too. We wouldn't want the other nearby dressed gadget laughing at you and, admit it.

Power Mac Center is at 201 Greenbelt 1, Digital Mall at 3/3, 10th, Greenbelt, Digital Mall at 10-10, Park Square 1.

IPAD accessories are really a pain.

Solid overview of lang's artistic growth in 'Recollection'

By Michael Toner

NIGEN REI LANG PERFORMED Leonard Cohen's "Hallelujah" at the 2003 MTV Unplugged opening ceremony in Vancouver in a plain white suit and bare feet, her voice rising the wistful song. Millions of people were reminded that Canada is home to one of the best female vocalists the world has seen and heard in 20 years—and, with the recent release of lang's first retrospective album, "Recollection," millions more will get the chance to become reacquainted with the singer that Tony Bennett has called "one of the all-time greats."

LANG: Is singer's singer?

There are 22 songs in this two-disc set, mixed from a catalog that has spanned 20 years. While fans may consider this collection somewhat on the conservative side, it nonetheless provides a solid overview of lang's growth as an artist. From her early folk-influenced country beginnings to her shift to adult contemporary and the more, other side trips that she's taken through the years.

Influences

It has always been difficult to put a label on lang's music. "Recollection" does what it can, but only hints at the vast and comparable artists and styles that, but also her willingness to embrace a wide variety of influences. In the singer's own words, she often is "a combination of everything I've done—there's a bit of jazz, a little country, a bit of the big band sound, and a little Brazilian touch."

The four-time Grammy winner has been dubbed "a singer's singer," and has held her own alongside legends like Jonico, Roy Orbison, Linda Ronstadt, and Bruce Springsteen. The first Grammy she won was in 1997 for Best Country Vocal Collaboration for her and Orbison's duet, "Tryin' to Be a Man."
